The Revolution's first two campaigns are viewed through these windows.

- American reaction to the "intolerable" Quebec Act.
- Disruption of Canadian and native mobilization by rebel agents.
- Rabid persecution of the rebels' political opponents.
- Liberty delivered by invasion and Carleton's perplexing reaction.
- Defence of Quebec City by Canadian militia, American loyalists, British Regulars and sailors.
- Valour of Canadians, natives and loyalists in expelling the invaders.
- Remarkable naval build-up on Lake Champlain.
- King George's disappointment with the results of Carleton's 1776 campaign.
